Information regarding cookies

When you view this website, or any other hyperlinked website, we may store some information on your local computer in the form of a "cookie", which allows us to adjust our website to better match your preferences.

A cookie is a small text file, which the website you are visiting saves on your local computer. Cookies are used by many websites to give visitors access to a range of various functions. The information contained in the cookie can be used to monitor a user's surfing behaviour.

There are two types of cookies regular cookies and session cookies:

- Regular Cookies save a file for an extended period on your computer and is used, for example, with functions which describe what information is new since you last visited the particular website; and
- Sessions Cookies are stored temporarily in your computer's memory while you are visiting the website and surfing a page, and is used, for example, to determine what language you have chosen. Session Cookies are not stored in your computer for an extended period, but are deleted when you close your browser.

Sabre.ro uses both types of cookies for the purposes of collecting visitor statistics, to enable the user to remain logged in to e.g. the subscription service on the website, to remember user preferences, e.g. language, font size and to remember user agent properties, e.g. screen resolution, connection speed, etc.
